ke's Board Seeks Steel Settlement

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — The A. Presidential Board of directors today opened hearings today in an attempt to settle the first worst steel strike with the aid of a court injunction.

The three-man panel has a limited testimony on the for a back-to-work injunction in the 90-day-old walkout, from sources said.

ENDING Board Chairman George W. Taylor was expected to announce the decision at the public session, industry and union officials could testify.

Industry attorneys had tried to lay the groundwork for a legal fight against a Taft-Hartley decree by arguing that the steel industry does not now threaten national welfare.

CAROLYN Avery, from Salt Lake City, is being sponsored by the Intercollegiate Knights, Shipp Hall, and Val Norn social unit. She is a sophomore English major.

The coronation of the queen will be held on Oct. 19 in the Smith Fieldhouse at 10 a.m. The winner will reign over all the events of Homecoming Week, which include assemblies, parade, dances, BYU-Denver game, banquets and the Fieldhouse Frolics.

SALT LAKE CITY — Howard W. Hunter, Southern California businessman and attorney, was sustained Saturday as a member of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Elder Hunter, the only new general authority sustained at the 12th semi-annual conference of the LDS church, fills the vacancy in the council created when President Henry D. Moyle was appointed second counselor in the First Presidency.

THE NEW apostle has served for nine years as president of the Pasadena Stake of the LDS church.

The 51-year-old Hunter is a corporation attorney. He is a member of the Los Angeles Bar Assn. and the California State Bar. He was born in Boise, Idaho, and graduated from Boise High School. He later graduated cum laude from Southwestern University, Los Angeles.

Groundbreaking Signals Mon. Construction Start

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Administration Building at Brigham Young University will be held Monday at 11:15 a.m. at a spot northeast of the new College of Business Building now under construction.

The ceremonies will follow the regular forum assembly in Smith Fieldhouse, and the faculty and student body will walk immediately from the fieldhouse to the site of the new building.

President Ernest L. Wilkinson will be in charge of the ceremonies. Participating also will be representatives of the architects, Fecher and Fester of Salt Lake City and the contractors, Garff, Ryberg and Garff Construction Co. of Salt Lake City.

University, church, and construction officials will turn the first shovelfuls of earth to launch the project which will require about 600 days, or until about May, 1961.

The building will contain 96,000 square feet of floor space and will be constructed in an "X" shape. It will be located directly north of the new library, also now under construction.

IT WILL become the nerve center for the university and will house offices of the president and Administrative Council, LDS Religious Education, news bureau, university publications, general counsel, development, summer school, information services, dean of students, placement bureau, and university mailing.

House Testimony Labels Nikita 'Untrustworthy Mass Murderer'

by Norman G. Cornish
United Press International
WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (UPI)—A congressional committee has aired testimony that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev rose to power through mass murder, starvation and torture and should not be trusted.

The testimony, charging Khrushchev with the direction of man-made famines, shootings, deportations and suppression of religion, was given by nine witnesses, all but one natives of the Ukraine.

The other witness, Dr. Lev E. Dobriansky, Professor of Soviet Economics at Georgetown University here, charged that "there are several hundred Americans who are still in Khrushchev's slave labor camps."

The testimony was released by the House Committee on Un-American Activities at the second report on closed hearings it held on "The Crimes of Khrushchev."

IN A SLAP AT Khrushchev's American tour, the committee quoted the premier's own words in a special preface to the testimony:

"If anyone believes that our smiles involve abandonment of the teaching of Marx, Engels and Lenin, he deceives himself poorly. Those who wait for that must wait until a shrimp learns to whistle."

Learn Cultures Here

"... and I'm proud to announce that this year at this institution we have students from all fifty states and some 40 foreign countries."

By the time this year's freshman class has been at Brigham Young University for four years, they will have heard the above phrase a goodly number of times.

And if this year's freshman class is the same as a great majority of the classes that have preceded them, that phrase might as well have been spoken in ancient Celtic or Slavonian. In fact, if it were spoken in one of those languages it might draw more attention.

THE POINT IS LOST

The point that the phrase makes is highly important. It is also highly ignored. It is ignored by people from Helper and Idaho Falls and Tucson who sit in classes with students from Tonga and Hawaii and never say boo. Then they go down to see "South Pacific" to find out what the Islanders are like.

It is ignored by people from St. George and Vicksburg who live in dorms and residences with students from Japan or Pakistan or France or Sweden, and then dredge up dry statistics from moth eaten atlases to write research reports on those very countries.

PEOPLE WITH STORIES

There is a girl from Tonga on this campus studying nursing, who has helped deliver forty babies in her native village.

There is a student from Central America who has lived with the native witch doctors and knows their incantations.

The point is this: What good does it do to spend hours and days and years studying the world's cultures from books if we ignore the living, breathing examples of those cultures who sit with us in our cafeterias and walk with us to our classes?

How narrow it is to spout off Cuba going Communist, or Iran choking off our oil, or that Nationalist China being doomed, without ever having spoken to people from Cuba or Iran or China who are right here in our midst.

Foreign students who come to BYU are of the highest in moral, intellectual and social character. If they weren't the very top people in their respective countries, they wouldn't be here. There are thousands of students who are straining and praying to come to the United States to study. Only a tiny percentage ever make it. Those who do are sharp.

STAIN PROVINCIALISM

They are sharp enough not to appreciate staid provincialism and unintentional snubbing which they sometimes experience. They are sharp enough to know that, for the most part, BYU students are friendly and amiable, if somewhat provincial and staid. They are sharp enough to get what they came here for and become stronger, smarter, more able citizens of their own countries.

This is not a crusade to save the poor foreign students from being downtrodden. The foreign students on this campus are in better shape socially, intellectually and spiritually than almost anyone.

This is a crusade to save the poor downtrodden students from Idaho Falls, Tucson and Tabiona from intellectual erosion. It is a crusade to make them realize the rich cultural jackpot they hit by coming to BYU.

Get to know these people. Talk to them.

Nikita Called 'Mass Murderer'

chev carried out a program of mass starvation to stamp out public resistance in the Ukraine when he was boss of the Communist Central Committee there.

Nicholas Prychodko, now a professional engineer for the city of Toronto, Canada, and formerly a professor at Kiev University, testified that six to seven million persons died in the "man-made" famine.

Constantin Kononenko, of Boomtown, N. J., testified that while Stalin made "the basic decision" on the campaign, "Khrushchev cannot obliterate the historical fact that he was actually the perpetrator of the deaths."

MYKOLA LEBED, President of Prolog, a research and publishing firm in New York City, gave this chilling description of the reign of terror which he witnessed and accused Khrushchev of leading through the Red secret police.

"With hot irons they tortured those prisoners who were caught. They cut into the skin and tore the skin off from the living body. They also nailed people on the cross. They cut off the sexual organs and breasts of women. They cut out eyes, broke bones and legs and arms and extracted nails."

Dr. Dobriansky told the committee that Khrushchev rightly earned the title, "Hangman of Ukraine."

"Contrary to the observations made by many naive 'Heretics' of our day, people like former New York Gov. Averell Harriman, Harrison Salisbury (of the New York Times) and numerous others, there is definitely a terrorism abroad in the Soviet Union," he said. "There are still quite a number of slave labor camps."

Dear Sir:

I went to a dance at the Smith Family Living Center on the night of Oct. 3. Entertainers were there to perform for us during the intermission. I have always felt that when others are performing, the audience should show them proper respect. There was talking and laughing going on through all of the performances.

I understand that BYU is founded around the principles of good behavior and the desire to serve God. When others gather to share their God given talents, let others be silent to appreciate them.

Dislikes News

Dear Editor:

I'm questioning the value of your use of world news in the Universe. As students of the Brigham Young University, we have our own community, our own problems. I can really see no reason to take up space in the student newspaper for information from the outside world.

It's probably easier to take stories off the tele-type and shove them in the paper than to go out and dig up the news on campus, but that's what you are running a newspaper for, to inform us of student happenings.

Sincerely,
Owen T. Jamison

Gospel of Thomas Set In Old Egypt Scroll

by Louis Cassels
United Press International

In 1945, a group of Egyptian peasants, poking around the ruins of a hillside tomb, discovered 13 leather-bound volumes of papyrus.

They didn't think much of their find. They used one of the documents to light a fire, and sold the rest very cheaply to a dealer in antiquities.

EVENTUALLY the papyrus volumes came to the attention of Biblical scholars—and touché since the discovery of the Dead Sea scrolls.

One of the ancient books, preserved for more than 16 centuries in the dry Egyptian sands, proved to be a collection of 114 "sayings of Jesus" purportedly recorded by the Apostle Thomas.

The full text of this so-called "Gospel according to Thomas," first available only to a handful of researchers, will be published in English by Harper & Brothers at the end of this month.

IT IS FASCINATING reading, particularly for anyone who is reasonably familiar with the Bible.

Many of the "sayings" attributed to Jesus duplicate passages that are found in the four canonical gospels of the New Testament—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. Others, however, are new.

The authenticity of the latter will be the subject of long and earnest debate among scholars. Some of them sound as if they might truly have come from the lips of Jesus. For example:

"JESUS SAID: If those who lead you say to you: 'See, the kingdom is in heaven,' then the birds of the heaven will pre- cede you. If he say to you: 'It is in the sea,' then the fish will precede you. But the kingdom is within you and it is within you."

Or this new beatitude:

"Blessed is the man who has suffered, for he has found life."

And this timeless answer to the whole philosophy of materialism:

"IF THE FLESH has come into existence because of spirit, it is a marvel; but if the spirit has come into existence because of the body, that is the marvel of marvels."

Despite the presence of these pearls, the "Gospel according to Thomas" cannot properly be called "the fifth gospel," for it is not unanimous and is not on that point.

In the first place, they out, this is by no means the first Apocryphal (non-"gospel") to turn up. Others have been known to exist for more than four centuries, and every one of them is said to be either entirely spurious, or at least far less reliable than the four early church books found in its holy scripture.

IN THE SECOND PLACE, both from internal evidence and from the fact that it was found at the same time as the "Gospel according to Thomas" was produced by ancient Egypt, the "Gospel according to Thomas" is not known as the Gospel of Thomas in Egypt, but as the Gospel of the Twelve.

The Gnostics tried to make Christianity a catechism, a thesis with other Greek philosophy and mystic rituals of their own. They had a number of doctrines, which were directly contrary to Christian teachings.

FOR EXAMPLE, the Gnostics believed that man is saved not by grace, but by knowledge. The Greek word for knowledge is Gnosis, and that's what they meant by it (name).

They also held that the world was created by a demon, not by God, and that the body is therefore inherently evil—an idea totally foreign to Christianity.

TRACES of these peculiar Gnostic beliefs were found at many points in the "Gospel according to Thomas."

Most scholars who have analyzed the document believe it probably was based on some genuine collection of sayings. It is well known that such compilations were very early in the Apostolic age, and that authentic gospels like Matthew and Mark were made some years after them. This would account for numerous points at which the "new gospel" repeats, in parables and sayings, the words of the earlier gospels. And it allows for the fact that the "Thomas" may include genuine sayings of Jesus that are not in the Bible.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

by Harry Wilson Sharpe
United Press International

WASHINGTON—Russia scored another "first" in the space race last week with its third manned rocket—Lunik III—shot into the unknown around the never-seen back of the moon.

Soviet scientists claimed the "legend" "interplanetary space" encircled the moon, then sent it into the infinite beyond in great 170-day flights.

It would return in about 10 days in a great looping orbit to orbit both the earth and the moon.

HARRY Said the feat demonstrated that Russian technology has beaten the Americans in mastering the baffling space control system. They also noted that some American scientists agreed that the event marked the "beginning of space age—the first step."

It was a far greater achievement, they said, than the historic Soviet moon strike on Sept. 14—first embarrassed the U.S., specimen still must catch.

Dr. Wehner Von Braun, chief of the U.S. Army's rockets and space program, asserted that "any pinching policies" had by the United States from being first. Other high officials of the Soviets hold a solid edge rocket propulsion.

On the home front President Eisenhower brook an 8-day Atlantic coast dock strike with a sit-Hartley law injunction and ended similar action in the 90-day walkout. The dock stoppage had cut off vital food and material cargo to heavily-embargoed ports from Maine to Texas.

THE PRESIDENT invoked the sit-Hartley law in the steel strike and appointed a fact-finding board with instructions that report back to him by Friday, Oct. 16. After the fact finders report, the government will get injunction to halt the strike 30 days.

Eisenhower acted after congressional negotiations collapsed. He warned labor and management that their "trial of strength" was costing Americans jobs and trying his patience.

Some congressmen talked in terms of compulsory arbitration laws to end strikes such as steel which cripple the nation's economy.

In foreign affairs, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter charged the Soviet Union to curb aggressive acts of other Communist nations, including Red China. He told newsmen that representations by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and these leaders indicated each entry was taking a different line toward solution of international problems.

HE WOULD NOT predict, however, that the two Communist giants were headed for serious policy conflict. But he did say Russia's demand for recognition as leader of the Communist world places responsibility on Moscow for overt acts of other members of the Red bloc.

Herter twice stated that point to emphasize American insistence that Khrushchev's peaceful co-existence proposal will not work unless Red China, which has designs on Nationalist Formosa and is fomenting trouble elsewhere, practices what Khrushchev preaches.

IN THE WAKE of this declaration, Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon warned Red China that an attack on Formosa would "likely" unleash a world nuclear war. The President meantime called for "constant vigilance" in the Far East to preserve the peace. United Nations ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge who escorted Khrushchev on his recent visit, said it was "quite possible" he will be invited to pay another visit.
